

WRITINGS OF ROOSEVELT

Condemns Men Who Object to Government by Injunction.

The Cowboy Candidate Reported to Have Said of President McKinley That He Has No More Backbone Than a Confectioner's Chocolate Man—His Sympathies for Colonies.

It is maintained by Democrats and admitted by many Republicans in Washington that the candidate of the Republican party for Vice President is one of those unfortunate men who are called "cowboy candidates." It is said that the cowboy candidate and broncho-busting office hunter written too much. A Republican politician said today: "It would have been better from the point of view of political expediency had Governor Roosevelt left unwritten his unfriendly criticism of the negro regulars at San Juan Hill."

Governor Roosevelt has placed himself on record in the favor of government by injunction. In the "Review of Reviews" in September, 1896, he wrote:

"The men who object to what they style 'government by injunction' are, as regards essential principles of government, in hearty sympathy with their remote ancestors who lived in caves, fought one another with stone-headed axes, and ate the mammoth and woolly rhinoceros. They are interesting as representing a geological survival, but they are dangerous whenever there is any question of their making the principles of this age buried past living factors in our present life. They are not in sympathy with men of good minds and sound civic morality."

According to Mr. Roosevelt, in an article in the "Century" for February, 1898, the outbreak against him at Victor, Colo., was probably the result of "boisterous heartiness" rather than "viciousness."

In the article referred to under the caption of "Ranch Life in the Far West," Mr. Roosevelt said: "When drunk on the villainous whiskey of the frontier towns, the cowboys and rough riders cut mad antics, riding their horses into the saloons, firing their pistols right and left, from boisterous light-heartedness rather than from any deadly shooting affray, brought on either by accidental contact of the moment or on account of some long-standing grudge, or perhaps because of bad blood between the ranches or localities."

"But they are much better fellows and pleasant companions than the small farmers or agricultural laborers; nor are the mechanics of a great city to be mentioned in the same breath with them."

The Unhappiness of Colonies. Governor Roosevelt has also recorded his disapproval of colonies. In 1898 G. P. Putnam's sons issued from their press a book by Mr. Roosevelt entitled "American Ideals and Other Essays." In this book Mr. Roosevelt undertakes to discuss several American problems, social and political. In his essay on "The Many Virtues and Practical Politics," written in 1897, he says:

"At best the inhabitants of a colony are in a cramped and unnatural state. At worst, the establishment of a colony prevents any healthy growth, and presents the only hope for a colony that wishes to attain full moral and mental growth, is to become an independent state."

In his speech at Saginaw, Michigan, on September 7, Mr. Roosevelt said:

"The issue of the campaign is contained in that placard, 'Let well enough alone.' 'Old man well enough is old man good enough, and it is the best to let him alone.'"

On April 3, 1900, David Starr Jordan, President of Leland Stanford University, said in an interview, when asked which view of the issue of imperialism, McKinley's or Bryan's, was gaining most among the people:

"Let me quote you Roosevelt on that. He said to me last week: 'Jordan, I want to tell you we were off the Philippines and had them off our hands, and many other Republicans are thinking the same.'"

"I am free to quote Roosevelt, because I consider him in many respects one of the greatest men in the Republican party."

"How do you like McKinley?" was asked President Jordan.

"Let me quote you Roosevelt again," was his reply. "He said to me: 'McKinley has about as much backbone as a toy chocolate man that you can see in the confectioner's stand. He is a terrible disappointment.'"

Mr. Stevenson's Record. The Republican managers, representing the trusts, which are the foes of organized labor, are seeking to distract attention from themselves by giving wide circulation to certain charges that were made in Republican newspapers in 1892 that Adlai B. Stevenson, then president of the McKinley-Camp campaign, was an enemy to organized labor, and especially to the miners.

Mark Twain's cure for a cold in the head was simple, but he claims very effective in his own case; his plan was to eat nothing whatever for three days, and then, presumably, the trouble had disappeared.

Although not able to speak from personal experience as to the effectiveness of this treatment, it certainly has the merit of extreme economy, but it occurs to us that the application of it to a case of nasal catarrh might be attended with difficulties.

Catarrh, as everyone knows, is a chronic cold in the head, and Mr. Twain's treatment, if it should become a fad, would make of us a nation of fastidiously emulating the example of the immortal Tanager, who achieved world-wide fame by fasting forty days.

Catarrh is certainly becoming a national disease, and there is little doubt but that errors in diet, particularly overeating, is a very common cause of it.

Most people, however, are more interested in the cure of the trouble than in the cause, and modern medical science has produced more effective and less heroic remedies than Mr. Twain's.

Guaicol is a new remedy, very effective in some forms of Catarrh. Eucalypti is another which, on account of its purifying properties, is very valuable, while many severe cases of Chronic Catarrh have been entirely cured by the sanguinaria, or extract of blood root, alone.

Within a year an enterprising chemist has combined all of these remedies in tablet form, palatable and convenient, and the superiority of this tablet over other catarrh remedies is so apparent that all druggists now carry them in stock to supply the popular demand.

They are called Stuart's Catarrh Tablets, and it is doubtful if any medicine has achieved a national popularity in so short a time as this.

Stuart's Catarrh Tablets are used by thousands of traveling men because they can be carried in the pocket and used any time and in any quantity, being made of Cocaine, opiate, or any poisonous drug.

They clear the head and throat from the disgusting secretions of catarrh, very often in a few hours' time.

For nasal Catarrh they are far superior to any wash, lotion, or ointment, the use of which is often as inconvenient and annoying as the disease itself.

For coughs, colds, bronchial catarrh, and catarrh of the stomach these tablets give immediate relief and a permanent cure where lotions, douches, and inhalers make no impression whatever.

This preparation is a boon to catarrh sufferers, and any druggist will be glad to tell you that Stuart's Catarrh Tablets is a remedy that has come to stay.
